Introduction

Welcome to your Universe! You stand on the threshold of entering previously unknown astrological understanding of the Cosmos. This report includes a comprehensive look at your natal Centaur placements to ensure complete grounding and connection with your home planet, Earth. Your personal connection to the powerful and transformational black holes takes you into a dimension of inner self reflection intended to clarify your essence and your connection with All That Is. Enjoy your journey into the exciting vastness of space!

Your birth chart interpretation is based on the positions of the planets at the time of your birth. For the benefit of students of astrology, these positions, along with other technical information, are listed below:

Sun 14 Leo 17
Moon 2 Vir 18
Mercury 27 Can 34
Venus 13 Vir 53
Mars 9 Sco 34
Jupiter 15 Leo 14
Saturn 12 Ari 19
Uranus 22 Vir 19
Neptune 21 Sco 35
Pluto 19 Vir 09
True Node 1 Tau 02
Asc. 27 Leo 31
MC 20 Tau 07

Centaur Interpretation:

Section I: The Centaurs

Centaurs are asteroids with several properties in common, one of which is that they travel from deep regions of our solar system to within the orbit of Jupiter. They are similar to comets but are larger. The first Centaur discovered was Chiron in the year 1977. Chiron was first thought to be a kind of planet, but is now considered a Centaur by most astronomers.

Now you might be thinking "Oh, gosh! More teeny things to consider in my horoscope. Doesn't the chart have enough going on as it is?" Consider that astrologers use one planet, Venus, to describe the vast areas of love, art, and beauty in our lives. The asteroids add depth and detail to the astrological analysis, enabling us to see more specific issues.

When the first Centaur, Chiron, came to our attention, he was greeted with mixed feelings. Some, considering this body very difficult to define (planet, asteroid, comet?), saw it as a nuisance. Others remained sure of his importance. It would appear that those astrologers possessed a vision of better things to come.

Ultimately, Chiron emerged as a potent teacher, healer, shaman leading us all through previously unremovable wounds - whether psychological or spiritual. His urging to fully invest the spirit in the body and involve oneself in life now stands as the leading wave of soulful healing. His demonstration of the essentiality of relationship between body and spirit now stands accepted, intact and most importantly, significant in all of our personal healing efforts.

Now Chiron has five named Centaur siblings: Pholus, Nessus, Asbolus, Chariklo and Hylonome. Suggestions exist for yet another named body, Pylenor, which is awaiting astronomical nomenclature protocols. Ultimately, all the other Centaurs will receive names as well.

Each Centaur appears with a solution to a common social malady of today's complicated society and associated psychological and psychic backlash. The integration of these bodies provides us with simple, consciousness-oriented ceremonies and healing techniques to enhance our coping skills. The Centaurs restore our sensibilities - literally, our ability to use our senses, emotions and body perceptions - ranging from an instinctive nose to chill bumps - thereby increasing our humanness. In a time when the array of electronic communication and technology decreases our sentient involvement in our lives, the Centaurs appear to restore our senses and sensibilities.

The Centaur clan offers valuable attributes in our everyday life, psychological healing and spiritual growth. Consider the powerful remedies offered by these bodies:

Chiron - healing psychic wounds of rejection, restoring spirit to body
Pholus - overcoming substance abuses, restoring peacefulness of spirit, use of daily ritual
Nessus - defining need and want in money and relationships with healthy balance
Asbolus - development of and use of full intuitive faculties
Chariklo - assessing personal boundaries, both psychologically and energetically
Hylonome - healing grief and regret

As you welcome the primal gathering of Centaurs into your horoscope, you will enjoy enhanced awareness of emotion, passion for life, quest for purpose and sensorial reactions to all situations. Saddle up and ride these tiny, yet potent, bodies, for a celestial journey to self understanding, compassion and well-being. Enjoy!

Chiron

For those people feeling rejected by parents and carrying that banner throughout life, relief is near. Should you be sensing wounds that simply will not leave no matter what is done, a solution stands near. And if feelings of displacement, alienation and disconnection prevail within yourself, the healer has arrived. Soon, with use of the essence of this relatively new healer, Chiron, the way clears for a stronger sense of self with spirit invested in body. This sense of self works to reestablish healthy relationships with others.

Chiron was the wounded healer, or the healer who wounds. His mode of healing works to bring up the hidden issues, overcome denial, offer penance, then go on in greatness. He was one of the immortals, with a god as a father who rejected the son. The mother disowned him because of his ugliness (half man, half horse). With no place to go, Chiron became an avid learner studying with the great ones, devouring all knowledge. Accidentally wounded at an event using ceremonial wine unceremoniously, his immortality became a liability as the healer could not heal his own wound. He persisted in life feeling pain that he, the healer, could not heal. His pain includes parental rejection, unworthiness and in today's terms, soul loss.

Chiron opted to end the eternal pain at all costs. He took a voluntary task in the underworld, coming out with the ability to ascend to the heavens as granted by Zeus (Jupiter). He represents being able to take on healing directly, clearly and intently. He symbolizes our willingness to go into the caves of consciousness and examine our nature. He grieves, then heals. This powerful healer comes before us encouraging the clearing of all things within our psyche. After this occurs the path opens for our spirits to fully fuse with our physical being.

Chiron Quincunx Moon, Orb: 3 deg. 00 min.

Each emotional situation you feel has the right stuff to fill your need platter, needs some additional spice of sensitivity. After all, if you were cooking the mashed potatoes you would have done it such and so. Though the potatoes do their comfort food thing, it could be flavor enhanced. This phenomena requires a couple of persistently used prescriptions. First, know that when others don't quite line up on your emotional page they simply do not perceive your exact need. Then, you get to explain how you need it to work for you. Suddenly, magically, things at this point don't work perfectly; but they are better. Go through the cycle again. Next thing you know, with a little emotional elbow grease, things are feeling pretty good. As far as others are concerned, when you hear complaints of hurt feelings, tell them what you do when you're in that boat. Easily moving downstream on the currents of feelings no longer looks like you're going south.

Chiron Trine Mercury, Orb: 1 deg. 44 min.

You're a bit like the ancient Hindu poet, Rumi. Your words flow out of you like a river of inspiration and soothing healing. You could be an expert in word sounds, like replacing harsh sounding words with smooth sounding words. With onomatopoeic ease you issue gentle breezes with your words and thoughts. Actually, this comes a bit too easily to you. You might undervalue this gift because it seems so simple, obvious and matter of fact. But it is no such thing. You have the ability to find flawed thoughts in others. These ideas become exorcized with your healing articulation. You then offer others replacement thoughts easing their troubled minds. You blanket them with phrases of reassurance. You render verbal strokes of absolution. This gift is strong. Should you choose to write your images, thoughts and inspirations, many people you will never meet stand to benefit. Take some time to examine why you wouldn't do this. Then savor the ideas as to why you would.

Chiron Quincunx Asc., Orb: 1 deg. 47 min.

While it seems to you that everyone in your life has an opinion on what you're doing, they do. Not all of these opinions offer you anything worthwhile. You have to filter. Try using your initial reaction. Those renderings that agitate or irritate your nature, especially in your belly, probably comes closest to the target. While not the most pleasant considerations, include them instead of resisting them. This brings you relief, awareness and renewed clarity. Such is the path of life. Your participation in constantly tweaking every element of your life is the task. It's worth remembering that all input you receive from others is not valid. Your belly must be the barometer. It's like realizing that everything you read online might not be true. Filter. Your filter can be tuned by aligning with a trusted group of companions. You know these people to be honest and kind with their truthfulness. Ask for advice. Include what you can. An affirmation for yourself would be: I am doing the best I can, with the clearest intent, based on what I know right now. Soon, your opinion will be solicited by others. Don't be shy.

Pholus

Perhaps a sense of listlessness in life encourages one to eat too much or too little. Maybe even taking on alcohol or other substances as a substitute for contentment becomes the way one copes. The Centaur Pholus appears to remind us of what it is that actually lies beneath these physical urges to compensate or over-compensate in life.

Pholus appears at just the right time to remind people of the needs of spirit. While he signifies everything about food and drink, he also stresses the idea that all things intending to nurture our beings remain powerful ceremonies. Pholus indicates diet patterns, especially methods of cooking and even the type of diet including carnivorous or vegetarian ways. His attitude toward drink, most especially alcohol, insists that it be offered ceremoniously. The custom of toasting with wine (or whatever is the alcohol of choice) comes from Pholus. Blessing food symbolizes a Pholus thought. He represents use or abuse of all physical substances, alcohol being the most significant of his concerns.

Ultimately Pholus reminds us of the need to fill our daily lives with those things that are good - and only good - for us. He establishes awareness of necessary limits and requirements. He goes even further in that he offers the reminder (and often a stern one) that your daily routine must include your spiritual drill: saying grace, toasting, a daily meditation, smudging, ceremonial cleansing or whatever comes under his wise and watchful eye. Should things feel out of sorts, offer simpler, reverent acts every day. Watch the restlessness subside and the sense of well-being begin.

Pholus Quincunx Uranus, Orb: 1 deg. 10 min.

Keep chanting change is good as you head into those caverns of consciousness of yours. The easier approach in life would be to perform the shifts needed at the time you realize them. Yeah, and what fun is that? Apparently, based upon your current caving trek, you'd rather build some adequate tension. This way you feel you'll get more out of the experience. While this belief possesses indisputable truth, it's not the easiest path. Bear in mind you perpetually make your own choice as to whether you'll circumvent the storm with a longer distance path, or plunge head on into it with a shorter distance to endure the discomfort of adjusting. Tune your inner clock to sense the precise moment to begin or end any life activity. This sharpening of your wits eliminates the dreaded eleventh hour syndrome. Should you choose the more difficult adventure of altering your life, no one wants to hear you complain about what you must obviously enjoy. Find the bliss whether your pursuit is hit or miss.

Pholus Square Neptune, Orb: 1 deg. 54 min.

Moderation, though not your forte, certainly serves you better than the one-for-the-road attitude. You might hold some confusion regarding matters of ceremonial pursuit and hard-core reality. For instance, why is wine part of religious ceremony? Why doesn't more wine make the ceremony more insightful? Part of your reason for moderation comes from a higher than average sensitivity to substances - including food, smoke, cosmetics and supplements. Your ability to be induced or coerced when your sensors are diminished with substance is high. Create your own standards for what constitutes ceremony, ritual and reverence. Then reality check this to ensure no justifications, rationalizations or delusions underwrite your score. Once you create this perspective your visions can assist others in recognizing those things that tamper with their spirituality. An awareness allergy consultant, you guide others to restore their sense of spiritual purity by attending to body irregularities first.

Pholus Opposition Asc., Orb: 4 deg. 02 min.

While you might be inclined to pour your lover another glass of wine, it might interfere with the need of the moment. Your interest in toasting your lover is noted. However, the two of you would benefit from some form of ongoing, intense bonding. This bonding comes from the glue of sharing wonderful food and rampant conversation. Or the connection would benefit from creating a discipline of conducting ceremony together. For some, going to a religious service, then enjoying a comforting meal would work. Others might need to retreat together. Those with busier schedules can weave several ceremonial adventures around their dinner plans every week. This aspect strives to regenerate the best in relationships by recollecting that the deepest relationships come from the unlimited sharing of the souls. This builds the highly sought soul mate type connection with your chosen partner. The pressure to be more than what you are diminishes. A realism of emotional connection receives enormous support from co-participating in nurturing events. Something as simple as sharing a vigorous walk, exchanging foot massages and sumptuous meals of nutritive value do the trick. As others ask you about the magic of your love life, maybe invite them over for dinner.

Pholus Square MC, Orb: 3 deg. 23 min.

Fight though you will, your spiritual leadership role in life persists beyond your ability to resist your fate. Like it or not, others seek you out for nurturing, motivation and spiritual inspiration. Great. And usually this occurs on the days in which your behind is firmly planted in a tub of funk. Watch what happens. Every time you're called upon to rally the troops you regain your own momentum. Whatever was in that tub lost its gravitation grasp that had extended well up over your groin. Now your legs are moving, hips swinging, as you stride down the pathway of life. The key in this pattern, of course, comes from your knowing ability to rally your own spirit. Keeping yourself at inspired edge serves you well. This comes with no conflict challenging you or battle lines bellowing bad breath in your face. Can you deal with inspiration without crisis? That would be the crisis, eh?

Nessus

It's been said that money and sex are only important when you don't have them. Whether or not this is true is up for grabs. But what we can derive from this saying is that two issues of importance to the human spirit are money and sex. In fact, under extreme circumstances, people can be observed demonstrating the best and worst of human characteristics with these issues at hand. Witness the excited glow of a lottery winner. Look hard to see the collapsed aura of a person dealing with insurmountable debt. Examine the fractured aura of a lover rejected for a younger more attractive partner. Consider the radiant glow of someone newly in love. Watch what happens as people discover that they simply cannot live without a certain thing, economic status or the love person in their life. These issues receive impeccable clarification from the Centaur Nessus.

Nessus refers to a level of desire that goes beyond need. Wanting more, coveting or even qualities of lust fall under his influence. Nessus refers to the two juicy areas of life: monetary matters and intimate relationships. He seeks out the things you unconsciously want but might not be able to articulate. He notes those things you feel you do not deserve, yet crave. First, though, he uncovers urges and desires that may not feel comfortable to your "I am a good person," belief system. But he transforms all negatives if given a chance. He works with you to ensure you enjoy the bounty of your relationship with healthy abundance. Nessus observes your financial state in life, then offers his position on what would really make you feel good in an unlimited way. Ultimately, Nessus' balance would be to have enough money not to need more and not so much that it consumes your time and thoughts.

Nessus is a powerful healer. He insists that you open yourself to the realm of sensuality in life. Smell flowers, taste food, feel the air, enjoy touch, savor success and feel everything fully. He provides the ultimate in healing issues of converting poverty to abundance. He brings about the exchange of lust, shame and guilt for healthy physical enjoyment of life, whether explored intimately with another or in one's relationship with the Creator.

Nessus Sextile Sun, Orb: 2 deg. 49 min.

You project a sense of ease in dealing with the real world. You also portray an uncanny effortless as you glide through your personal love life. Despite these attributive things, the flip side allows you to be seen in a somewhat suspect manner. "After all," others think, "what gives you the right to be so cool and carefree?" There's always the idea of good karma. But in case that seems too illusive, consider the good natured attitude with which you approach getting your needs sustained in life. You know you cannot take what others will not give. Therefore, you foster a sense of generosity, sharing and cooperation within every fiber of your essence. People notice this. They respond to the good energy you emanate. Your approach is simple. Stay clear, keep spirit in balance with life ensuring a healthy ego and treat others fairly. As obvious as this is to you, others miss the boat. Your job would be to pilot them to the luxury liner that life can be and show them how to board.

Nessus Square Venus, Orb: 2 deg. 26 min.

The love of love and the love of money provide relentless motivation for personal gratification. You do understand the similarity between these concerns. You also deeply experience personal esteem reviews with the coming and going of these highly charged needs. They are needs. They should be kept as such. Taking need responses beyond a reasonable realm of evoking healthy esteem about your life works against the plan. For you to evolve from average income to the high eight figures in one year might pose a self defeating agenda. Working toward a goal while continually monitoring your economic growth takes the sting out of your sense of lack. Meanwhile, in your love life should you seek to boost your relationship into the sensitivity stratosphere, take your time. You build a mountain of gratifying successes, stone by stone. Recognition of accomplishment turns the molehill into the mountain.

Nessus Quincunx Mars, Orb: 1 deg. 53 min.

You represent quite a contradiction in the need/want areas of life. Your history indicates that others can disadvantage you as you innocently explore what you feel you want - or feel you should want. This builds a suspicious expectation for anyone showing up to help you gratify relational or monetary desires. You always expect an agenda. There always is an agenda. What if the agenda intends to be favorable and supportive to you? There's a weird spin on the matter. Despite your desire, you'll remain exceedingly cautious. This might undercut your fulfillment. But you'll argue that's better than the alternative of exploitation. Meanwhile, you might end up being a representative or messenger of the very issues that perplex you. You do hope that others remain kind to the messenger service. This representation, while you perceive it as misrepresentation, strives to indicate to others the depth of the core of your needs. They show up, whether consciously driven or not, to meet the gravity of your appeal for gratification. At this point, the cycle of adjustment could favorably come to a meeting of the minds, money and bodies. Read your telegram.

Nessus Sextile Saturn, Orb: 0 deg. 52 min.

You understand the rules of engagement that lead to fulfillment. Whether involving the delicate areas of money or relationship you understand the keys to a successful campaign. First, you negotiate. Second, you exchange whatever is to be exchanged. Third, you enact the deal without taking away or adding to those things agreed. Clear and concise, your ability to interact within your word while obtaining the heart-fulfilling, soul-expanding needs of life operates with laser-like precision. Ultimately, you can disclose these "rules" to others. You can also explain that rules do not represent restrictive liabilities to contentment. Rules provide parameters for efficient relationships between people discussing and dealing with the difficult task of bridging unpredictable emotional straits. You take no unfair advantage. You seek no unfair advantage. Should someone else seek to impose their agenda over the pre-agreed plan, well, you'll have no choice but to equalize the matter with whatever it takes to do so. This pattern often places you in the position of clarifying terms for parties in dispute with one another. The key element, of course, insists that this work is not forgotten in your own life.

Asbolus

Ever have one of those moments in which you went against the flash of insight you received? Such situations become more glaring if life tosses back some sort of difficulty, like exactly the one of which you were forewarned. When you feel like leading the charge up some sort of symbolic mountain to take on a perilous task, do you ever ponder what the outcome might be?

Asbolus, another of our Centaur guides, represents the best in intuitive awareness. Asbolus reflects good counsel given and not heeded, or good advice received and not heeded. Usually the results of not heeding such input become immediately apparent. The urge to veto one of those insightful flashes falls under the visionary gaze of Asbolus. The insight just seemed to be a logical projection. There was nothing psychic about it. "What are the odds of that," Asbolus nudges again. The odds seem high at the moment. He urges absolute attentiveness to futuristic impressions. Stop while you're ahead. No need to take on challenges from an unnecessary argument or death-defying tasks, or push your personal limits. Back off, relax and contemplate.

Asbolus further represents the loss of guidance or wisdom because of alcohol. He points out how judgment, physical and otherwise, degrades when intoxicated. His alternative would suggest that when life feels all-consuming, reinvoke a ceremonial situation to clear the mind. This effort restores strong judgment that supports the spirit and reinstates the intuitive faculties to full potency. Regardless, following intuition remains his determined influence.

Asbolus Coniunct Mercury, Orb: 4 deg. 25 min.

Your intuitive funnel never ceases being open to the whispers coming in from enlightened places. You hear intuitive words. Maybe you sense psychic urges and probably smell them (literally) as well. The job you possess is one of translating this data into a supportive and encouraging warning system. Alert systems, by nature, operate within a negative context. You must convert them into positive assessments. Otherwise the messages you receive go unheeded. This remains especially true with yourself. Beyond mental impressions your work supports development of reading omens and separating real omens from fear-based games of psychic speculation. Hitting an owl on the highway falls into different interpretive importance than games of, "if the next six traffic lights stay green." The physical conditions of life need comprehension. Does your dead battery indicate not going to your intended destination? Or does it imply that you need daily attention to automotive life details? Regardless, perception, clarity and integration of mental impressions that may or may not be psychic becomes your ongoing chore - whether solely for yourself or others under your psychic umbrella.

Asbolus Square True Node, Orb: 0 deg. 57 min.

While you do gain glimpses of eventualities to come, do your best not to insist they evolve exactly as you see them. For instance, if you see someone having a car accident, casually asking about and supporting the effort of getting the brakes checked would be all that was required. To insist that something go awry despite efforts of resolution goes away from the belief in a benevolent Creator. Second chances ought to be part of your thinking. You get a second chance for rectification each time you become aware of a problem pattern and steer away from it. This allows you the instinctive ability to untangle your own personal ball of life twine. Straying away from the guidance granted you in stressful life configurations increases your frayed nerves and severed spirit. Your goal is to use the insights in a timely, clear manner. Avoid no message of higher origin. Of course, you would do well to not compare higher messages with logical thinking. Common sense just might be the triggering mechanism of real consciousness. You won't know this without devoted application.

Chariklo

In today's world, the term "boundary" defines the receptivity we have to others or the resistance we put up to others. When encountering new people, what is your criteria for establishing connection? Does it work? If you are pushing away people you'd like to have in your life, perhaps resetting your boundaries is in order. If you're experiencing conflict with a friend, family member, co-worker, boss or your mate, perhaps redefining your boundaries would help. But where do you go for understanding these instinctive urges and reactions you're having to others? Help is at hand.

Chariklo, the sea nymph wife of the powerful healer Chiron, connects you with your greater unconscious and soul urges. She represents your awareness of both your emotional and spiritual boundaries. And in so doing, she works to improve all your relationships by clarifying what is and what is not acceptable to your spirit. Your emotional boundary would be how close you permit another person to stand near you, whether consciously interacting or not. It would also show up as your claim of your physical and emotional needs from another person. She further represents your receptivity to the emotional claims/demands of others.

The spiritual boundary carries the urge for divine kinship. Here you seek someone with common causes, inspired aspirations and shared views of the Universal - a real kindred spirit. These separate boundaries may or may not be the same dimension. And they might be different with every person you meet. Chariklo represents the qualities of compassion, tolerance and forgiveness in unlimited proportion. She questions intent and examines motivation in a gentle, curious manner. She encourages you to start with yourself. Check intent and motive. If it feels good, proceed. If it does not bring a warm sense within its midst, then make corrections.

She bears the sacred marriage between body and soul. Chariklo represents the wedding known as the acceptance of one's spirit by the body. She offers soul retrieval and recovery, bonding ceremonies and energetic healing as her clarity-producing gifts. This clarity opens the doors for shedding the light of understanding toward all people. Then, you are clear to become a vehicle of helping others understand their own boundaries by your shining example.

Chariklo Opposition Venus, Orb: 4 deg. 19 min.

You often feel you get led into situations. This happens when people override your sensibilities with an onslaught of psychic energy big enough to choke an elephant. You often go with the plan. It might even seem like the thing to do. A few important points reside under this ramada-like roof of receptivity. First to consider, is it possible that this is where you really wanted things to end up? Did this interaction serve your needs? If so, honor this realization to ease your sense of being swept away. Second, did you engage in what you see as disadvantageous situations to yourself in the interest of helping the other person? If so, what does that make you? Co-dependence does not well define such complicated interactions. In truth, you might have, in some obscure, wise part of your psyche, realized that you chose to take on the role of healing facilitator in weird, wacky episodes. Truly, your essence offers comfort to others. That's why they charge at you with full interest. Take a moment in these tsunamis to determine what role you choose to play. Choice in these matters is everything. Choose well. Choose good. Choose your fulfillment - first.

Chariklo Trine Mars, Orb: 0 deg. 00 min.

You are the energetic healer who knows the flow of life force. Like a camouflaged snake, you can weave your energy in and out of the fields of life completely undetected. While secrecy and stealth are not goals, they are byproducts. You know that if a person feels content with their energy in the fullest, that they are unlikely to engage in power struggles with others. You can teach this by being the impeccable example - and you do - whether you choose to be aware of this attribute or not. Use the images of lava. It flows perfectly and naturally around the obstacles of life. If necessary, it can overrun some of them. It can also burn away others in a symbolic purging. Does lava hold the goal of destruction? Actually, no, the opposite is true. Lava, from the core of the Earth, surfaces to regenerate the land. The flow of energy as you see it reinvents an individual by affirming pure life force. Should someone stand in the way of one's natural energy, they impede the soul's urge. Such impedances cannot be tolerated. And in those scenarios, become perfectly intent on creating renewed energetic lands to pioneer.

Hylonome

When losses of life, failures or those things not attained override one's sense of hope, the Centaur Hylonome receives a request for appearance. Should the fiscal losses and relational despair feel overwhelming, call out to this feminine Centaur. When distraught over the ending of a relationship in which you had no control over the outcome, use Hylonome.

Hylonome lost her mate during a Centaurian debacle. She was so distressed and unwilling to cope after his death, that she thrust herself on the spear that killed him. So, she appears in our lives not as an indication of hopelessness, but to provide the will to overcome the mountain of insurmountable grief. She appears to provide hope in the darkness of loss. She encourages grief, howsoever painful. She promises that if you let yourself feel the scary feelings of personal, emotionally thick endings, that you will, in time, feel relief.

Whether consciously or not, persons with strong Hylonome aspects function as grief counselors. They offer hope and encouragement to all downtrodden sorts. Of course, to be able to render such precise care, they first must have shed the negativity of all losses perceived in their own life first. These people encourage rebuilding of self-esteem, repair diminished egos and point out a healthy spiritual self-sufficiency.

Hylonome Square Venus, Orb: 3 deg. 49 min.

Your attitude about love concerns runs deep. While you appreciate your current love situation and all it offers, you live in some apprehension. This angst comes from your speculation as to what you would do if this ended - most classically through the death or alien abduction of your love interest. Meanwhile, all the joy and pleasure that is at hand goes into overlooked categories. This does seem wasteful. Maybe if you grieve in advance you can offset the eventually of grief when it raises its ugly head. And it's possible that this eventuality lies a long time away in the future. Emotionally waiting for the other shoe to drop forces you out of range to the availability of what love envelops you now. Your focus requires resetting your consideration of how to live with the love you have. Avoid the "How could I ever live without this person?" mind chatter. Bear in mind that you now remain fully relatable. Should you specialize in non-relevant grief, expect an undesirable quality to filter into your aura. Next thing you know you could be alone. Antidote: discover joy, pleasure, emotional wellness and being fortified in all moments such things are present. Share this powerful set of values with all others in your life. It's quite a present.

Hylonome Sextile Jupiter, Orb: 2 deg. 27 min.

You've always got a good idea for someone else's emotional twang. You know the right cup of tea, type of soup or gentle caress that makes the shift from suffering to release. You know that the nature of pain originates in holding to the hurtful emotion. So, you show up, render the relief and rebuild the belief system. Your grief-releasing attributes run in the mental and philosophical aqueducts of awareness. You know that with people who like to figure out their feelings that if you defeat their logic, they can evaporate the dilemma. You focus on creating an in-your-face contradiction of their basic beliefs. Once the flaw appears, then the fix becomes easier. Given these specialities in your consciousness, you can expect to be on call a major portion of the time. Seems like others will constantly appeal to your ability to iron out the thought and belief wrinkles. Take a moment before going out on a mental magic mission to ensure that all your tools sit in the proper place in your handy dandy fix-it kit. And iron your garb before hitting the road.

Hylonome Square Pluto, Orb: 1 deg. 27 min.

When you say, "til death do us part," you mean it. Your sense of interpersonal interaction runs into eternal dimensions. You're the kind of person that will make an agreement to be someone in another life if this one does not offer that opportunity. For those with whom you can form a bond, you uphold the assumption of an indelible soul interaction. We shall always be together henceforth, no matter where you go or what you do. In a more awkward manifestation, no matter whom you are with, that person also fits this billing. Often when a life long mate of a person in this pattern departs the grief becomes all consuming. The key would be to locate the essence and previously committed energy from this partner. Use it as hope and inspiration. After all, the one who loves you would not want you to lose your steam just because they are not physically near. On a more practical application, should you experience any extended absences with your determined soul mate, you will need some help in keeping your furnace stoked. Your awareness of monogamy, soul bonding and the imprinting of spirits that occurs with ceremony far exceeds the reach of many. Should you share this? Well, can this be your soul support?

Section II: The Black Holes

Black holes offer one of the most compelling mysteries of modern astrophysics, and as a result, to modern astrology as well. These powerful enigmas maintain a relatively constant position in space. When in contact to a natal horoscope either to the Earth based geocentric (the more common system which can be measured either in the tropical or Vedic/sidereal systems) or the Sun centered heliocentric chart, they fill in a huge missing piece of traditional astrological interpretation. Black holes often add a dimension to either the psychological or spiritual profile of the birth chart.

Most simply, a black hole is the result of a decaying star. When the star wanes it exceeds a proper proportion of nuclear furnace abilities and explodes into a Supernova. The explosion throws stellar matter and debris far out into space. There, it slows and begins to cool. The cooling process induces contraction. Over time, the gas and matter collapses back toward what was once the core of the "progenitor" star. After a short millennium or so, the contraction forces an accelerating and irreversible collapse. The star falls back in upon itself literally punching a hole in the fabric of the Universe. At this point, infinite gravity, density of space and compression of time results.

A black hole contains two components: the event horizon and the singularity. These look like the shape of a horn. The inner part of the horn would be correlate to the singularity. The outer edge of the horn's bell would be the event horizon.

At the event horizon, entry into the black hole becomes unavoidable. The gravitational pressure is so intense that not even light can escape - thus, the term black hole. Also at the perimeter time stops. Outside the black hole is time as we monitor it. Inside the black hole time moves in the opposite direction. Similarly, matter can not escape. It become crushed into energy as it falls into the singularity.

At the singularity there is an infinite curvature of space and time and infinite gravitational compression. Everything falling inward simply converts from matter to energy. What matters, literally, becomes lightened up.

Surrounding the black hole, because of this violent consuming nature, the atmosphere heats up to millions of degrees in temperature. This energizes surrounding space causing the emission of X-Rays and Gamma Rays while rendering a blue shift of light, the apparent approach of light to the observer.

It is from these physical images that we derive our first look into the interpretive qualities of the black hole. There often exists a well documented period between the black hole source and the star it consumes. This creates an energy "biorhythm" of sorts for the person in contact to the black hole. While feeling like a physical effect it originates in the person's own electro-magnetic energy field usually called the aura, chi (life force) or basic flow of the spiritual Kundalini energy flow. The pulse of the X-Ray duration affects a person as well. This burst of penetrating energy establishes an attention cycle requiring extreme discipline. In the most extreme black hole players the pulses range from 283 (4 minutes 43 seconds) to 529 seconds (8 minutes 49 seconds).

The X-Rays produce a perceptive, non-judgmental, introspective inner looking ability. Each black hole person has the ability to literally look through another person. The desire is only to see what the other person (or one's self) is all about at the core soul level.

These people warp time and space. They are able to go back and forth in consciousness between varying levels of reality. Known for spacing out, such a person actually tracks information of other Universal Realities. The difficulty remains bringing back the insights. Remember, nothing can come out of a black hole. So a person must strive to record the awareness of another realm into the consciousness, perhaps at the cellular level, so it is indelibly retained. Then the awareness becomes usable in the real world.

The ability to "imagine" future circumstances, events, inventions or even societies goes with the black hole. So does the ability to "recall" what occurred long ago. A person with many black hole contacts standing on an historic site can feel, see and sense what happened as if it is happening to them at the moment. They can also pre-perceive reality, imagine progress for humanity or define a future invention in their mind, possibly "causing" the necessary awareness to create the invention.

The gravity of the black hole, particularly with the Supermassive Black Holes, quickly develops a following. Once an intention goes out to draw energy, attention and resource, a following quickly surrounds the black hole person. Sometimes these people are described as irresistible. On a more subtle level, the person seems to be placed in a central position as a matter of drill whether relating to a work group, humanitarian concern or social sphere.

The ultimate effort of the black hole refers to one's unavoidable destiny or "dharma" in the world. They unconsciously seek to draw everything to them that fulfills the greatest intention for their life. Possible of great impact, the person strong in black hole connections unconsciously aspires to create the greater good for the world and usher in a time of great global progress.

Enjoy your personal journey in these previously indescribable dimensions! Follow your own lead with each awareness received.

You radiate uncompromising firmness in your ways. Most notably, the ways you choose to do things that differ from standard contain the strongest charge. As well they should. Obsessed with perfecting nothing short of unflinching individuality, you commit yourself to this cause regardless of sacrifices attached. Willing to bear the labels of "eccentric", "town crazy", "easy to excite", or "bizarre" (probably your favorite) you display these labels on your chest like merit badges. You've worked hard to get this way. While some see you as annoyingly contrary, another huge point lingers in the projections. You demonstrate through every cell of your being, the self-certainty necessary to stay true to one's self. You will not compromise your spirit. That's the same as giving away freedom. There's another big part here, too. Show people to think for themselves. Encourage them to walk through the "spins" of life. Whether media propaganda or their own worry-based disinformation, show them how to come up with other conclusions. Of course, to do this, you'll have to engage with them somewhat.

Your mind seeks to journey. You need the vast, stimulating fascinations of exploring the yet unknown. Since your processing time requires a good bit of this intangible life force, give yourself a boost. Watching videos on distant galaxies where you actually see the awe-inspiring swirls in space helps immensely. Viewing deep sea films of whales doing their dark water work serves you. Films about caving, especially underwater caving, inspire your imagination. If you assign a pictorial scenario to your mind, you encounter an altered state. This state would not technically be mediation, but it offers up the same kind of results. A peacefulness comes with the realization that the energy in the Universe might actually be unlimited. The mind set you hold about your own personal resourcefulness comes to clearer comprehension. Whenever you do these envisioning, mind-quelling things, take your time. Prohibit interruptions in advance. Turn off all electronic things that summon your conscious mind. They'll be there later when you apply your consciousness to them with the benefits of your newfound lands of inspiration.

The love of order, detail and distinctive proprieties drives you. This drive might also drive your partner crazy. "Too many rules," you often hear. "Your protocol for love takes all the fun out of it." You unconsciously associate your reactions with logical responses. If a green, pine smelling candle once created the perfect love making scenario, you'll extrapolate that over all future love episodes. Sometimes you'll need a red candle; other times you'll want no candle at all. Your partner will jump up and down for joy if you go with the flow of the moment. When someone tries to get you to go outside your standard mode, recognize you now exist on the threshold of predictability and boredom. Since you want your love life to be perfect, stretch and go with the undiscovered rules. The real unconscious urge for the love routine is to preserve your personal sense of purity and appropriateness. Should you invest your heart in a completely uninhibited manner, you'll have struck pay dirt. That natural law will never be broken no matter how dirty you get.

To be weird takes phenomenal courage and strength. Consistency with the clarity of your soulful core must be maintained in life at all costs. Anything else isn't really living. It's only hiding out in limbo hoping no one will notice your greatness. Greatness comes from uniqueness. You know you have some special attributes. Revealing them in all their glory opens doors of opportunity. It lets others see what you really know. You build a reputation of being in the moment. More simply this means others cannot project your reactions into a box of expectations. Your oddities are not displayed to be contentious, disruptive or to carry an attitude of, "I don't need your stinking rules." The only motive expresses a clarity about what you can offer, even though it might be different than status quo. You're slowly becoming an expert in shoring up the cracking, old structures, so that stronger spiritual supports can be installed. There is nothing to gain by tearing down something useful. Should something be beyond repair, you possess the courage to say so. Carry out all your unusual features and ideas. Contain them in the expanse of your spirit.

What do I need or what do I want? Good questions. Here the distinction becomes more of an inner yearning that feeds the core of the soul. Any solicitations of personal response, compliment, praise or sanction that appeal to the ego fall on an entirely deaf set of ears. Even when the praise is heard it sounds hollow, tinny or ultimately non-fulfilling. Should someone say something about your inner spark and soul's attractiveness, now you come to light. Your fire lights the furthest expanses of time and space. You'll wrestle with your sense of how you look or your talent. You'll crave the confirmation of what you are on the inside. Of course, to ward off the ego-captivating, soul-diminishing drudge of how you view your personal real world priorities, you must lead with the essence of your energy. It just might work to look at yourself in the mirror before initiating any mundane endeavor to ensure your energy is properly piqued.

Often you feel you've missed the tone of what someone just said to you. Your sensors tell you that it means something other than what the words naturally imply. "What does that mean," you must ask. One thing it means is: "Feed your mind." Ensure you create mental pictures of an emotionally fortifying lifestyle around you. Should others not want to talk about your interests, talk to yourself or read a book. You can give yourself more mental agitation than is necessary should you overlay subtext analysis on every comment tossed your way. Truly, sometimes people mean nothing by it. And if they do you'll interrogate them until they cough it up. The blistering emotional badgering does more harm than good. Sometimes others are not ready for such an emotional confrontation. Should you find yourself in these limbo situations, feed your basic beliefs. Conduct breath exercises to consciously fortify your body's most primal external need. This breathing, by the way, clears the mind.

In terms of relationship, you know exactly what makes your coffee pot of love percolate. You know precisely the measure of water, coffee and blend of brewing heat. While these elements provide a recipe they can also set into place a restrictive influence. What if your love interest gets up early to surprise with an in bed cup of wake-up coffee? What's this? Cinnamon? Did you add salt for flavor? You know better than that. Rules are rules - according to your love manual. Allowing spontaneity and unpredictability into your relationship just might be a good thing. In fact, it's great. These alterations intend to enhance the environment of love. You might even end up with multiple coffee brews that warm your love belly perfectly. This way you can go with your mood at the moment. Love is in the air and there's an entire world of coffee producing countries to offer you precisely prepared beans for the mood brewing.

Your vibration is huge. Others hold a very different sense of you and your energy than you do. Perhaps canvassing those you trust would help you build reflective perspective on the outer limits of your energy. Unwittingly, your energy might encroach on others. You mean no harm, it's just that your vibration gets in their face a little more than they want - okay, a lot more. But if you're going to poll the audience of life, listen to the results. It would be easy for others to misinterpret your efforts. There seems to be a part of you that sincerely seeks to help people become inspired to be more. So, you push them to the edge. This to the brink approach works. It works even better if people want to be pushed. Often, the need to push others to the brink seeks only to refocus your own flames into a perfectly efficient burn ratio. Then, your energy becomes huge without scorching anything out there.

It would appear that no matter what you do - from job tasks to idle activity - a new, redirected idea of great potency comes your way. Some might argue that you fly off upon incidental tangents. You know it does not really feel like that. No need to argue about the truth of your actions. In fact, there's no need to argue about any truth. That would be one of the greatest ideas you'll ever encounter. You realize there is no gain in preaching to the converted, nor attempting to convert the unconvertible. This becomes a message you spread with great enthusiasm. Do your best not to neglect the other progressive ideas coming your way. These ideas carry inherent new ways to do the same old stuff - thus shifting patterns and avoiding the recreation of painful scenarios. No matter what you do, such ideas come to you. To fully understand the process of integrating such ideas, though, you first must endure the process of inner change and integration all by yourself. That inner work does not need to be shared.

Stories report that indigenous elders refuse to brush away pesky insects. While noble, it seems hard to apply this yourself when the fly buzzes around your face as if you're some sort of delicacy. Should the fly really want to land on you for whatever unimaginable purpose, no matter how many times you brush it off, it returns. Of course, you can bring out the swatter. So what about annoying details in life? There are many you stand firm that you should not even address. This non-conflict policy works in most situations. The only check point required asks that if this affects your material well-being, deal with it. If it's a petty tyrant person, as Carlos Castaneda so aptly put it, don't give them the time of day. Know where to place your raw energy as to dignify your spirit. Your deeper energy wants to rise to the surface. When this energy surfaces, it overrides the need for fighting off tiring, tedious tests. It's like eating garlic capsules. The bugs just do not find you appealing.

Heliocentric Mars Conjunct , Orb: 2 deg. 37 min.

Others work with the assumption that you're naturally what you appear to be. They consider you lucky at least; blessed at best. They have no sense of what you've done to get where you are. Do you? Part of your plan is to stay mindful of what you do to stay on top of the game. You know somewhere in those light bones of yours that you can never get lackadaisical. Nor can you take life too seriously - just seriously enough. You completely comprehend the need to stay tuned up by doing what works for your energy on a consistent, yet irregular basis. Opposed to the drudgery of fatiguing drill, you keep yourself sharp by exercising your resources. You never deplete your core with overdoing practice. In fact, you despise the concept of practice. Simply do it right or don't. The right way, according to your holy book, occurs with full and intentional application of the totality of your knowledge and energy to expeditiously arrive at your desired destination of life.

Heliocentric Mars Conjunct , Orb: 2 deg. 37 min.

You constantly focus on the belief that it is not so much what you said or did, but the intent behind it. The hounding echoes of religious structure reverberate the harsh message that thought, word and deed all possess energy. If you say it or think it, you might as well do it. Deep down in the core of your soul lies the link. This link will not lie to you. If it is good for your spirit, all your thoughts, words and acts reflect your nature. If your nature remains pure, untainted and free of cynicism you'll likely choose strong, positive intents to light your personal fires. All this would be delightfully good if only you did not doubt your motives. Imagining that you possess an ulterior motivation comes from what? Is it the doubtful part of you seeking to find the despicable darkness of the shadow you surely possess? Could it be the soulful part of you looking deep into your heart? Either way, if you conduct life with the agenda of feeding your soul you'll spill light into any corridors of darkness whether you're conscious of that or not.

Asc. Conjunct , Orb: 0 deg. 27 min.

Using the axiom, "Fake it 'til you make it," just might work for you. You dress how you want to be seen. If you want to be an artist, you hang out with artists. Of course, you're not just hanging out. You absorb the energy around you like it's your first drink since stepping of the surface of a brilliant burning star. There are not enough words to describe the thirst. You drink up all the qualities of others you seek to emulate. You might find relief from the new, Internet circulating theory of light bulbs. They now are seen to absorb darkness, thus emanating light. If you modify this idea, twisting it around your own event horizon ever so slightly, you can conclude you'll absorb what others have to offer. You'll emanate the brightness of it, shunting darkness to ground. Initially you ride the essence of others. Ultimately you project equal and possibly greater brightness repaying the loan with more than ample interest. It doesn't even matter if you pay it back directly from where you received it or not.

Heliocentric Venus Conjunction , Orb: 2 deg. 25 min.

To you, a relationship is an exploration of consciousness that circumnavigates all the realities of Creation. You make your pitch to your love interest and it sounds like a journey to a tropical paradise. Like two ocean liners docked at adjacent piers, you mark your departure date and destination. Gracefully, you retreat from your mooring, all your engines eager to churn underway. The other ocean liner casts off all but one line. The journey cannot occur for this vessel. You cannot wait. It could also be you would be the tethered ocean liner. Perhaps you wish for your partner to be a tug so strong as to force your remaining line of resistance to snap. Or maybe they could be a dock hand casting your last line free, then hastily jumping on board. Not likely. Either you cast away all abandon for this journey or you don't. You cannot rely upon the prompting of the other person, nor lean on their energy for fuel. You do it alone - so that they - alone - can join you on the open seas of love and you two can be all one.

Earth Conjunction , Orb: 2 deg. 25 min.

You work to demonstrate the best of ego. You'll work with the "fake it until you make it axiom." You promote "acting as if." Practice is a fine concept. Practice graceful walking. Practice projecting the confidence of spirit that must be there somewhere. Drill through specializing in locating all your specialties. Next thing you know these elements become known and integrated. Much like reciting a prayer, creed or historic speech, one day it just comes out. The same is true with your spirit. Make no mistake, ego-flaunting and outbursts of self-identity fall upon deaf ears. The resulting alienation forces you back within. You practice some more. Over the course of a relatively short time, you've mastered an understanding of your most unique self. That is the first mastery of self realization. Be different - be different confidently. The soul outshines ego every time.
